

Statement of Collegiality and Solidarity

On January 10th, 2016, the members of the Society of Jewish Ethics joined with our colleagues from the Society of Christian Ethics in making this statement:

A disturbing wave of hostility and hatred aimed at Muslims continues to sweep across the globe. The Society of Jewish Ethics joins the Society of Christian Ethics in repudiating this hostility directed at Muslims, including anti-Muslim hate crimes, mosque closures, and proposed registration programs. Our Societies recognize and respect the gifts and perspectives that diverse traditions bring to the academy. As partners of the Society for the Study of Muslim Ethics, we will continue to foster relationships of collegiality and solidarity with our Muslim colleagues in the academy and Muslims across the globe.
